HOW TO CURE CONSUMPTION.

THE PHILOSOPHY OF DR. SCHENCK'S GREAT MEDICINES.—Will people never learn to know that a diseased liver and stomach necessarily disease the entire system? The plainest principles of common sense teach this and yet there are hundreds who ridicule this fact and continue in the course which almost inevitably brings them prematurely to the grave. Living as the majority of the people do, at complete variance with the laws of nature, it must be apparent to all that, sooner or later, nature will revenge herself. Hence we find that persons who indulge to excess in the use of very rich or indigestible food or intoxicating drinks, invariably pay a heavy penalty in the end. The stomach becomes disordered and refuses to act: the liver fails to perform its functions, dyspepsia and its attendant evils follow, and still the suffering individuals persist in clinging to the thoroughly exploded idea of the past. Dr. SCHENCK'S medicines are recommended to all such. They bring sure and certain relief wherever they are used as directed, and all that is necessary to establish their reputation with every ailing man or woman in the lands is fair and impartial trial of them. Let those who are skeptical on this point, and who have permitted interested persons to prejudice them against these now celebrated remedies for consumption, discard their prejudices, and be governed by the principles of reason and common sense. If the system is disordered depend upon it, in nine cases out of ten the seat of the disorder will be found in the stomach and liver. To cleanse and invigorate the stomach and to stimulate the liver to healthy action, use

SCHENCK'S MANDRAKE PILLS.—The daily increasing demand for these pills is the best evidence of their value. Thousands upon thousands of boxes are sold daily. Why? Simply because they act promptly and efficiently. Invalids who may not find it convenient to call on Dr. SCHENCK in person are informed that full and complete directions for use accompany each package of the MANDRAKE PILLS, PULMONIC SYRUP AND SEAWEED TONIC.—These medicines will cure consumption unless the lungs are so far gone that the patient is entirely beyond the reach of medical relief.

It may be asked by those who are not familiar with the virtues of these great remedies, "How do Dr. Schenck's medicines effect their wonderful cures of consumption?" The answer is a simple one. They begin their work of restoration by bringing the stomach, liver and bowels into an active healthy condition. It is feel that cures this formidable disease. SCHENCK'S MANDRAKE PILLS act on the liver and stomach, promoting healthy secretion, and removing the bile and slime which have results from its inactive or torpid condition: these organs, and of the system generally. This sluggish state of the body, and the consequent accumulation of the unhealthy substances named prevent the proper digestion of food, and, as a natural consequence creates disease, which results in prostration and finally in death.

SCHENCK'S PULMONIC SYRUP and SEAWEED TONIC, when taken regularly, mingle with the food, and the digestive organs, make good and rich blood, and as a natural consequence, give flesh and strength to the patient. Let the faculty say what it may, this is the only true cure for consumption. Experience has proved beyond the shadow of a doubt, and thousands are to-day alive and well who a few years since were regarded as hopeless cases, but who were induced to try Dr. SCHENCK'S remedies, and were restored to permanent health by their use.

One of the first steps the physician should take with a consumptive patient is to invigorate the system. Now how is this to be done? Certainly not by giving medicines that exhaust and enervate—medicines that impair instead of improve the functions of the digestive organs Doctor SCHENCK'S medicines cleanse the stomach and bowels of all substances which are calculated to irritate or weaken them. They create an appetite—promote healthful digestion—make good blood, and, as a consequence, they invigorate and strengthen the entire system and more especial by those parts which are diseased If this cannot be done, then the case must be regarded as a hopeless one.

If the physician finds it impossible to make a patient feel hungry, if the deceased person cannot partake of good nourishing food and properly digest it, it is impossible that he can gain in flesh and strength; and it is equally impossible to bring a path ent to this condition so long as the liver is burdened with diseased bile, and the stomach laden with unhealthy slime.

Almost the first request made to the physician by a consumptive patient is that he will prescribe medicines that will allay the cough, night sweats and chills, which are the sure attendants on consumption. But this should not be done, as the cough is only an effort of nature to relieve itself, and the night sweats and chills are caused by the diseased lungs. The remedies ordinarily prescribed do more harm than good. They impair the functions of the stomach, impede healthy digestion, and aggravate rather than cure the disease.

There is, after all, nothing like facts which to substantiate a position, and it is upon facts that Dr. Schenck's relies. Nearly all who have taken his medicines in accordance with his directions have not only been cured of consumption, but, from the fact that these medicines act with wonderful power upon the digestive organs, patients thus cured speedily gain flesh. Cleansing the system of all impurities, they lay the foundation for a solid, substantial structure. Restoring these organs to health, they create an appetite. The food is properly assimilated the quantity of blood is not only increased, but is made rich and strong and in the face of such a condition of the system all disease must be banished.

Full directions accompany each of the medicines, so that it is not absolutely necessary that patients should see Dr. SCHENCK personally, unless they desire to have their lungs examined. For this purpose he is at his office, No 15 North Sixth St., corner of Commerce, Phila., every Saturday, from 9 A. M. until 1 P. M.

Advice is given without charge, but for a thorough examination with the Respirometer the charge is $5.

NO SECTS IN HEAVEN.

Talking of sects till late one eve,
Of the various doctrines the saints believe,
That night I stood, in a troubled dream,
By the side of a darkly flowing stream.

And a "Churchman" down the river came,
When I heard a strange voice call his name,
"Good father, stop: when you cross the tide,
You must leave your robes on the other side."

But the aged father did not mind;
And his long gown floated on behind,
And down his stream his way he took,
His pale hand clasping the gilt-edged book.

"I'm bound for Heaven; and when I'm there,
I shall want my book of Common Prayer;
And though I put on a starry crown,
I should feel quite lost without my gown."

Then he fixed his eye on the shining track,
But his grown was heavy, and held him back,
And the poor old father tried in vain
A single step in the flood to gain.

I saw him again on the other side,
But his silk gown floated on the tide;
And no one asked, in that blissful spot,
Whether he belonged to "the Church" or not

Then down to the river a Quaker strayed;
His dress of a sober hue was made;
"My coat and hat must be all of gray;
I cannot go any other way."

Then he buttoned his coat straight up to his chin,
And stably, solemnly, waded in,
And his broad-brimmed hat he pulled down tight
Over his forehead, so cold and white.

But a strong wind carried away his hat;
A moment he silently sighed over that;
And then, as he gazed to the further shore,
The coat slipped off and was seen no more.

As he entered heaven, his suit of gray
Went quietly sailing, away, away;
And none of the angels questioned him
About the width of his beaver's brim.

Next came Dr. Watts, with a bundle of Psalms
Tied nicely up in his aged arms,
And hymns as many, a very wise thing,
That the people in heaven "all round" might sing.

But I thought that he heaved an anxious sigh,
As he saw that the river was broad and high,
And looked rather surised as one by one,
The Psalms and Hymns in the wave went down.

And after him, with his MSS.,
Came Wesley, the pattern of godliness,
But he cried, "Dear me, what shall I do?
The water has soaked them through and through."

And there on the river far and wide,
Away they went, down the swollen tide;
And the saint, astonished, passed through alone,
Without his manuscripts, up to the throne.

Then gravely walking, two saints by name,
Down to the stream together came;
But as they stopped at the river's brink,
I saw one saint from the other shrink.

"Sprinkled or plunged, may I ask you, friend,
How you attained to life's great end?"
"Thus, with a few drops on my brow,"
"Cast I have been dipped as you'll see me now,
And I really think it will hardly do,
As I'm too communicative, for it is the tendency of the half-civilized peasant to
You're bound, I know, to the realms of bliss,
But you must go that way, and I'll go this.

Then straightway plunging with all his might,
Away to the left—his friend to the right,
Apart they went from this world of sin,
But, at last, together they entered in.

And now, when the river was rol ing on,
A Presbyterian church went down;
Of women there seemed an innumerable throng,
But the men I could count as they passed along.

And, concerning the rend, they could never agree,
The old or the new way, which should it be,
Nor even a moment paused to think
That both would lead to the river's brink.

And sound of murmuring, long and loud,
Came over up from the moving crowd;
"You're in the old way, and I'm in the new;
That is the false, and this is the true;"—
Or, "I'm in the old way, and you're in the new;
That is the false, and this is the true."

But the brethren only seemed to speak;
Modest the sisters walked, and meek,
And if ever one of them chanced to say
What troubles she met with on the way,
How she longed to pass to the other side,
Nor feared to cross over the swelling tide.

A voice arose from the brethren then,
"Let no one speak but the 'holy men;'
For have ye not heard the words of Paul,
'Oh, let the women keep silence all?'"

I watched them long in my curious dream,
Till they stood by the borders of the stream;
Then, just as I thought, the two ways met;
But all the brethren were talking yet;
And would talk on, till the heaving tide
Carried them over, side by side,—
Side by side, for the way was one;
The toilsome journey of life was done,
And all who in Christ the Saviour died,
Came out alike on the other side.

No forms or crosses or books had they;
No gowns of silk, or suits of gray;
No creeds to guide them, or MSS.;
For all had put on Christ's righteousness.

GOING TO SCHOOL.

"Did you like to go to school?"

"No, sir, I did not. I detested it—all its precedents, all its accompaniments, and all its sequents."

But this applies only to primary schools. The academy furnished many hours which are to be remembered with gladness; the early schools not one. They were engines of torture, devised expressly to make good boys unhappy, and succeed so well. Let us see—the first school that we remember was Miss Collins'. Duncon Collins lived southeast of Litchfield's old church. Up stairs we climbed, we remember that; on a long bench we sat, with our feet dangling in the air, and a tall, kindly-faced woman there was. But besides, we remember nothing—of book, slate or recitation.

Next we went to Miss Kilbourn's, on the west side of the square, and of this school two things stand forth in memory; first that the wind on this high hill used almost to take us into the air; the wind that never seemed to be done with blowing. It blew high and low. It swept along the ground, slamming open gates, whirling around corners; pushing us against the fence, and then into the ditch; little, fat, clumsy boy, that hardly feared anything visible but dreaded all mysteries, and shook with vague and nameless terror at the roar of the wind up in the high tree tops—the great elms swayed and groaned as if they, too, were in cruel hands. The other memory of this school was sitting wearisomely for hours on a bench, and swinging our little logs in the air, for want of length to reach the floor. Yes, two other things we recall; one, a pinch on the ear, the other a rousing slap on the head, for some real or putative misdemeanor, and a helpless rage inside, in consequence. But of lessons, knowledge, pleasure, there is nothing. The picture is blank. Not a word of tenderness, not one sympathizing, coddling act, not a sight of a sugar-plum, which in that day would have been to us more beautiful than the stones of the wall of the Heavenly City. Oh, why did they put such tempting candy in long glass jars, and set them in the windows, to put little wretches in such a longing, and make them so unhappy! How many times we have walked the long road to school looking all the way on the ground, in hopes of finding a cent—Such things had happened! Boys there were in our neighborhood who had found cents along the road, and even a six-pence in one case. But we never heeded that. Had a quarter been lost, the whole town would have been searched as with a lighted candle, and no boy would have been left the luck of finding it. Still the story acted on the imagination like an Arabian Night's tale. But over against that window—was it Buell's store?—he never gave us a particle of candy, and so his name rests uncertainly on our memory—over against that store we passed full often that the day might come—what things had not happened that seemed extravagant to think of?—when we should set up a store, and keep candy, and have a right to put our hand in just when we pleased.

We like to have done ourselves a wrong in saying that we learned nothing. We know distinctly that Harriet, one brilliant morning, plucked dandelions and taught us how to split them and roll them up into curls. It has been a great comfort to us many times since.

Our next school was Miss Pierce's. It was a lady's school. We went there under the care of older sisters. We don't recollect a single recitation. For days together we were regarded as a mere punctuation point, not noticed unless dropped out of place, or turned upside down. Mr. Brace, the father of C. L. B., used to pass by and look at us with a knowing face, and snap his finger in a significant way, without a word. But that mysterious snap was good for ten minutes propriety, and sometimes for even half an hour.

Once, for laughing out loud at somebody's fun—one had only to put his tongue in his cheek, or to point a finger at us, to set off that laugh that always lay pent up, waiting for deliverance—we were tied to the leg of the bench. The acute pain of which pierced us like a knife—a kiss cured it. For a kind faced girl, one of the older young ladies finishing her education there, looked upon our tearful eyes and scarlet blushing misery, took pity on us, put a soft hand on our head and stooped and kissed us. If a cup of cold water to a thirsty child shall bring an immortal blessing to the giver, how much more a warm kiss to a crying child unable to defend itself against shame! May the angels lay their hands upon her as she dawns upon Heaven, and kiss from her face every tear and sorrow of the sad world behind!

All experiences of children are evanescent, and few sorrows have they that are not drowned in the first sleep, dead as Pharaoh's host in the Red Sea. The school was not expected to teach us, and it fulfilled every expectation. Our time was in danger at home of ravelling out into mischief, and the school was a mere basting thread to hold down the hem of good behavior. Next we went to the district school.

Not a tree! not a bush! only a stone wall on one side and a board fence on the other. No window blinds. The summer sun beat down full upon the small, rough, unpainted school-house. Here we learned to catch flies, to crook pins for boys to sit down on, and from which they always rose with alacrity. If any man wishes to know what spontaneity is, let him sit on a well prepared pin. We learned the rudiments of the cost of "carrying on"—an art of the largest proportions, and which in schools, academies and colleges is amply taught, whatever else is omitted. Our bearing was very humble. We could make a cat's cradle under the bench unseen. We learned to make paper spit-balls and snap them across the room with considerable skill But beyond these interesting things we do not think we ever learned a thing. Why should we? Is it possible for a boy of six or eight years in the school prison, with no incitement and no help, for from four to six hours a day, and with all out doors beating on the school-house, streaming in at windows, coming in bewitching sounds through every crack and crevice, to be studious, regular, and exemplary? A good village primary school ought to be a cross between a nursery and a play-room, and the teacher ought to be playmate, mother and nurse, combined. One teacher we had, young, pale, large-eyed, sweet of voice, but not prone to speak—why must she have consumption and disappear? And the next day, behold in her place, a tall, sharp, nervous, energetic, conscientious spinster, whose conscience took to the rod as a means of grace! The first would have made us love and obey her. We were even beginning. From the second we were marvelously delivered.

"Mother, I don't want to go to school."

"You don't want to grow up a dunce, do you, Henry?"

"Yes, marm."

"What! Grow up like a poor ignorant child, go out to service, and live without knowing anything?"

"Yes, marm."

"Well, suppose you begin now. I'll put an apron on you and you shall stay at home and do housework. How would you like that?"

"O do, ma."

Sure enough, we were permitted to stay away from school, provided we would "do housework;" and all summer long our hands set the table, washed dishes, swept up crumbs, dusted chairs, scoured knives; our feet ran of errands, besides the usual complement of chores in the barn.

But, oh, did we not glory in the exchange? Yes, and in the long summer afternoons, when nothing more was left to do, did we not allow a good aunt to lead us along those paths of learning which before our feet eschowed? Great is our zeal for 'common schools, and disinterested: For we are not biased in favor of primary schools for one single pleasant memory connected with them. They lie in our memory as cunningly devised engines for putting poor, little, innocent, roguish boys to torment because they are mercurial, fun-loving, and impatient of restraint.—Henry Ward Beecher in Christian Union.

RUSSIAN PEASANTS.—Throughout the whole of Great Russia the dwellings of the peasantry are still more log huts, frequently without chimneys, and uniformly containing only one room which is the common dormitory. The rigor of the climate renders these habitations miserable in the extreme. Swarming with vermin, where not filled with smoke, and without ventilation, the hut is generally in winter the refuge of the sow and her farrows, of the lamb and the wookly sheep, as well as of men, women, and children. It contains no furniture beyond a rude table and a bench against each wall.—Pillows, and sometimes felt, constitute the only bedding, the place of which is supplied by the sheepskin, that seldom leaves the peasant men and women of Russia. Their domestic utensils consist of a few pots of burned clay, or cast-iron, the "samovar," or tea urn, being only found in the hut of a well-to-do-peasant. An earthenware cup and saucer, or a glass tumbler, are among the articles which the peasant deposits in a small cupboard below the images of saints. There is no garden to this log hut. The heavily worked peasant woman can scarcely find time to attend to the plot of flax which belongs to her individually, and on which the family depends for the more necessary articles of clothing. Any great material improvement of these peasant dwellings can only follow on education and enlightenment, for it is the tendency of the half-civilized peasant to expend his superfluous money on articles of personal adornment rather than on those of mere comfort, of which he has in reality no understanding. In villages on the Vola, where peasant families share the same roof with domestic fowls and animals, and burn wood laths instead of tallow candles or oil, the women attire themselves on holidays in crinolines, and silk damask dresses and jackets, while the men cover their unsightly sheepskins with good broadcloth.

SCOLDING.—A little girl not six years of age, screamed out to her little brother, who was playing in the mud:

"Bob, you good-for-nothing rascal, come right into the house this minute, or I'll beat you till the skin comes off."

"Why, Angelina, Angelina, dear what do you mean? Where did you learn such talk?" exclaimed the mortified mother, who stood talking to a friend. Angelina's reply was a good commentary upon this manner of speaking to children:

"Why, mother, you see we were playing and he's my little boy, and I'm scolding him just as you did me this morning, that's all."

"A Pennsylvania bachelor" thus gets after a lovely woman: "I impeach her in the name of the great whale of the ocean, whose bones are torn asunder to enable her to keep straight. I impeach her in the name of the peacock, whose strut, without his permission, she has stealthfully and without honor assumed. I impeach her in the name of the horse, whose tail she has prevented from its use to the making of wavy tresses to decorate the back of the head and neck. I impeach her in the name of the kangaroo, whose beautiful figure she, in taking upon herself the Grecian bend, has brought into illfavor and disrepute."

☞ At a serenade as we were going home a few evenings since, we heard the following serenade of a sentimental swain, which we had the curiosity to take down, as repeated by him:

"Oh! Polly poke your night-cap out,
And listen to my sighses;
My heart it beats a rub a dub
And my eyes, oh how they crisis,
Then baste dear Polly, haste away,
Day breaks and time it flises;
The stars are going out my love,
And the sun, oh, see it——."

Just at this instant a boot-jack flew out of the window, and he again saw the stars.

☞ A piece of petrified oak, two feet in length and ten inches in diameter, resembling flint, was fished up in St. Helena sound, near Savannah, a few days since.

Happy Nancy's Secret.

There once lived in an old brown cottage a solitary woman. She was known everywhere from village to village, by the name of "Happy Nancy." She has no money, no family, no relatives, and was half blind, quite lame, and very crooked. There was no comeliness in her, and yet there, in the homely deformed body, the great God, who loves to bring strength out of weakness, had set his royal seal.

"Well, Nancy, singing again?"—would the visitor say, as he stopped at her door.

'O yes, I am forever at it.'

'I wish you'd tell me your secret, Nancy. You're alone, you work hard, you have nothing very pleasant surrounding you; what is the reason you're so happy.

'Perhaps it's because I havn't anybody but God,' replied the old creature, looking upward. 'You see, rich folks like you depends upon their houses, they've got to be thinking about their wives and children; and then they'realways mighty afraid of trouble ahead, I ain't got any thing to trouble myself about, because I leave all to the Lord. I think, well, if He can keep this great world in such good order, the sun rolling day after day, and the stars shining night after night, and make my garden things come up the season after season, he can take care of such a poor thing as I am; and so you see I leave it all to the Lord, and the Lord takes care of me.'

'Well, but Nancy suppose a frost comes after your fruit trees are all in blossom, and your plants out; suppose.'—

'But I don't suppose,' I never can suppose, I don't want to suppose, except that the Lord will do everything right. That's what makes you people unhappy: you're all the time supposing. Now, why can't you wait till the suppose comes and then make the best of it?'

'Ah, Nancy, it is pretty certain you'll get to heaven, while many of us, with all our worldly wisdom, will have to stay out.'

'There you are at it again,' said Nancy, shaking her head, 'always looking out for some black cloud. Why, if I were you, I'd keep the devil at arm's length, instead of taking him into my heart. He'll do you a desperate sight of mischief.'

She was right. We do take the demon of care, of distrust, of melancholy forbodings, of ingratitude, right into our heart. We canker every pleasure with gloomy fear of coming ill. We seldom trust that blessings will enter, or hail them when they come. We should be more child-like to our Heavenly Father, believe in His love, confide in His wisdom, and not in our own; and above all wait till the 'suppose' comes, and then make the best of it Depend upon it, earth would seem an Eden, if you would follow Happy Nancy's rule, and never give place in your bosom to imaginary evils.

The Lesson of Life.

When everything is counted, it will be found that the sum total of our lives resolves itself into but two things—anticipation and memory. The pleasures and miseries of the moment are ephemeral, and only to be taken note of as they have been looked forward to, or as they leave their record in the past. In youth, life is richest in anticipation; but as years roll on the mind acquires the habit of looking backward, and *when old age has come, there is noth*ing left this side of the grave. Fortunate is that man who, in the midst of the cares and turmoils of a busy, and often unsatisfactory, life, has a happy childhood to look back upon—a picture gallery of loving faces that once formed a home circle, a record of sunny years, which includes gentle tones, kind actions, cheerful surrounding, smiling skies, twittering birds, blooming flowers and innocent amusements. Whoever robs a child of these, robs him of more than he can ever return to him in any other shape. A close, hard, narrow life, lived in childhood, not only dwarfs the future man's whole moral and affectionate nature, but leaves him no blessed store of memories to fall back upon, when the present is unsatisfying. Make your little child happy. Provide for him what enjoyments you can, be they great or small, and begrudge no money that you can spare in securing him these. In doing this you are not only giving him present pleasure, which is a great deal, as, in youth, impressions are stronger and more readily received and the capacity for enjoyment consequently greater; but you are really laying up a store of happiness for him in memories which shall last him all his life. Let the atmosphere which surrounds your children be so impregnated with affection that they shall breathe it in, as it were, at every inspiration, and their hearts will grow larger, and their blood run the clearer and purer for it. Let your own lives, mothers and fathers, be so upright and pure, that when you have passed away, your memories shall be enshrined in their hearts, and a halo will surround them like the aureole of a saint. Sitting, my friends, by the evening fireside, sitting in your easy chair at rest, and looking at the warm light on the rosy face of your boy or girl, sitting on the rug before you, do you ever wonder what kind of remembrance those little ones will have of you if God spares them to grow old? Look into the years to come; think of that smooth face lined and roughened; that curly hair gray, grown careworn and sad, and you long to be in your grave. Of course your son will not have forgotten you; he will sometimes think and speak of his father who is gone. What kind remembrance will he have of you?

CAUSE AND PREVENTION OF INFANT MORTALITY.—An exchange, speaking of infant mortality, says there is no fever, no prevailing epidemic to carry off these little ones. It will not do to attribute the mortality to the heat alone, for among adults it is seen that the deaths from this cause are gradually decreasing in number. There is, then, a cause more potent than heat. That cause must be ascribed to improper diet. Were all the infants under one year old given that food which nature provides for them this fearful mortuary list would be greatly decreased. They need such food as will supply the large demand for growth, and in such weather as this very little to maintain the body at the standard temperature. In all kinds of aliment there are constituents which fulfil two distinct purposes, one supports growth, the other heat. In milk these constituents are as one to two, in sago, tapioca and arrowroot as one to twenty-six, and even in wheaten flour but one is adapted to the growth of tissue, while seven are adapted to the maintenance of temperature.

If a child be fed upon these starchy articles of food, that which is not needed in the economy must pass off, through the bowels, if the stomach retains it at all, and the consequence is that fermentation is set up and distressing and often fatal diarrhœa results. The whole digestive apparatus is inflamed; the little nourishment contained in the large mass of food is not digested, and the infant notually dies of starvation. Whatever truth there may be in vegetarianism when applied to adults it is plain that such a diet was never intended for infants.—Nature first gives her children animal food.

No motive of convenience or pleasure should prevent the mother from performing that part toward her offspring which the infinite wisdom of the Creator has assigned to her. If the child cannot be nursed, the only available substitute that will fulfil the purpose of a nourishing diet is cow's milk, pure and fresh. For an infant under three months of age it should be diluted with an equal quantity of water, between that age and six months one-third of the mixture should be water, and after that age the proportion of water ought to be gradually lessened to one-fourth when the child is a year old.

It is much better to use no sugar at all than to use too much, and the addition of it is altogether unnecessary.—The milk must not be boiled but simply warmed. The bottle that is used to contain it must be very carefully scalded out after each time that it is used for the smallest portion of milk left to sour will be sufficient to cause fermentation in what is afterward used. On such a diet many an infant might be saved which now falls a victim to the evil consequences of arrowroot, corn starch, potatoes, "infant food" and their mischievous compounds. It is a vain solace to suppose that cholera infantum is an evil which must be submitted to in the summer season. Its cause and its prevention are in human hands.

Discoveries in New Mexico.

Advices from Santa Fe state that Governor Arny, the Special Indian Agent for that Territory, has found the Canon de Chelly, which was explored for twenty miles. The party found canons whose walls tower perpendicularly to an altitude of from 1000 to 2000 feet, the rock strata being as perfect as if laid by the skilled hands of masons, and entirely symmetrical. Among these ruins were found deserted ruins of ancient Aztec cities, many of which bear the evidences of having been populous, to the extent of many thousands of inhabitants. In one of these canons, the rocky walls of which rose not less than 2000 feet from the base, and whose summits on either hand inclined to each other, forming part of an arch, there were found, high up, hewn out of the rocks, the ruins of Aztec towns of great extent, now tenantless, desolate. In each of these rocky eyries there remained in a state of good preservation a house of stone, about twenty feet square, containing one bare and gloomy room, and a single human skeleton. In the centre of the room were the evidences that fire at some time had been used. The only solution of this enigma thus far ventured is, that these solitary rooms were the altar places of the Aztec fires; that from some cause the people at a remote period were constrained to abandon their homes, but left one faithful sentinel in each instance to keep alive the flame that according to the Indian traditions of these regions, was to light the way of Montezuma again to his people—their hoped for Messiah and their Eternal King. A close examination of many of the ruins proved that the builders must have been skilled in the manufacture of edged tools, masonry, and other mechanical arts. But who these people were, whence they came, or whither they are gone, is now, probably, one of the mysteries to remain eternally unsolved. Some of the ruins are reported to be stone buildings seven and eight stories in height, being reached by ladders planted against the walls.—Round-houses, twenty feet in diameter, built in the most substantial manner, of cut-stone, and plastered inside, were also found in excellent preservation. Astonishing discoveries have been made of gold and silver regions richer than yet known on this continent. They are supposed, by well informed persons, to be the East mines, of which tradition has handed down the most marvelous tales, and the mines themselves discover unmistakable evidences of having been successfully worked ages ago.

The Globe.

HUNTINGDON, PA.

Tuesday morning Oct. 18, 1870.

WM. LEWIS, HUGH LINDSAY, } EDITORS.

The "Globe" has the largest number of readers of any other paper published in the county. Advertisers should remember this.

There will be a great demand for wheat from the U. S. next year, not only on account of the war which has taken away men from the agricultural pursuit in France and Prussia, but also because the English wheat crop, it is estimated, will fall 6,000,000 bushels short of last year. We can feel safe in urging our farmers to till their land to their utmost capacity.

☞ A lively season is anticipated at Washington. The hotels are preparing for vigorous campaign, and the hackdrivers are getting ready to "stop and deliver." It looks as if a good many "jobs"are to be done by Congressmen, the big job of "reconstruction" having exhausted the most of the wind and fury of the former statesmen, and there will be a general picking up of crumbs. A rush of lobbyists is expected to fill up the halls and nooks to whisper in the ears of their "pets" what they deem best for the wel-fare of the Government, and altogether it looks as if there was "business" to be done. We hope Congressmen will stand the storm, and not let the anchor of the ship of State fall in too deep water.

☞ The Johnstown Tribune, Mr. Morrell's organ, is very sore over the result. Speaking of the election in this county, it says:

"The monstrous treachery of the political cut-throats and assassins of Huntingdon county, was not anticipated even by the few honest Republicans who reside there, and we, of course could not be prepared for it," (Speer's majority.)

The "few honest Republicans," we suppose, are those who crushed the ticket last year.

Again it says:

"Rich in political speculators and scoundrels, and its honest men noted for their lack of political sagacity, we have but to hope that in a new apportionment the county of Huntingdon may not be annexed to Cambria for any purpose whatever."

Somebody here Mr. Morrell has had confidence in lacks political sagacity. We could name several, and they are the kind Mr. Morrell most admired.

The President's Proclamation.

Under date of the 8th inst., President Grant issued a proclamation in regard to belligerent French and Prussian vessels in our waters. The whereases refer to the President's neutrality proclamation and state the apprehension that the belligerents may be tempted to abuse the hospitality accorded to them in our waters. The body of the proclamation declares that the harbors of the United States shall not be used by either the Prussians or French in preparing for war. It declares that vessels of war of either party shall not leave any of our ports within twenty-four hours of the departure of a merchantman of either party. It declares that belligerent war vessels, either French or Prussian, shall not remain in our ports unless it is for needed supplies or repairs. It lastly declares that a war ship of either belligerents having once entered a port of the United States shall not re-enter a United States port until after a visit to a port of its own government.

The Result in the County.

The result in this county is just what we expected it would be—and just what we said it would be—with Morrell as the Republican candidate. Two years ago this county gave Mr. Morrell 999 majority—now there is a majority of 586 against him—and why? because he was run in the interest alone of the men who united with the Democrats last fall to crush as good Republicans as Morrell, Scott & Co., dare claim to be. We regret that the "situation is as it is—the Republican party so completely demoralized that success in the future is uncertain—but the responsibility must and will rest with the men who struck down the regularly nominated ticket last fall. They were the first to repudiate party nominations, and Mr. Morrell nursed them then and has nursed them ever since. Mr. Morrell must be a very short sighted man if he expected to carry this county after permitting one wing of the party to be persecuted to the bitter end, by the few would-be-leaders who have but little or no influence with the mass of the Republican voters.

Our Senators have both been defeated. Mr. Woods was cut by at least two hundred Republicans who were false last year, but his vote was kept up by Democrats, who cut Petrikin or Crawford.

Both Democratic members are also elected. The party majority on the balance of the ticket is in the neighborhood of only 400, a heavy falling off from what the majority would have been for the whole ticket had a new man been nominated for Congress.

☞ The Democrats elect their whole county ticket in Cambria, and gave Mr. Morrell 109 majority over Speer. Mr. Morrell'sgains were made in and around Johnstown.

The Elections.

OHIO.

In Ohio the Republicans elect the State ticket by from 15,000 to 20,000. The Republicans gained two Congressmen in the 1st and Ninth Districts and lost two in the Third and Fourth.

INDIANA.

The Indiana State ticket has been carried by the Democrats by about 1500 majority. The Republicans lose one Congressman. In the Legislature the Senate is tie, and the Democrats have eight majority in the House.

IOWA.

The Republicans in Iowa made a clean sweep, and elected the State ticket by about 30,000 majority, and have the six Congressmen.

NEBRASKA.

Nebraska has elected a Republican Legislature, which will secure a Republican United States Senator.

TO PARENTS AND TEACHERS.—Father, or do you send your boy to school? If so, did you ever think that there is where he spends more than half the day; and where he learns, probably, all the good or bad that will follow him up to manhood? You may not have thought of this, but have let him go on in his course, never troubling yourself whether he does well or does badly; and so your child is permitted to grow up without any restraint or hindrance. If you think he does well, according to your notion of good, you feel proud, but do you ever let your boy share that pride with you, by commending him and giving him kind words of cheer? If you have not done so, you should not neglect the practice of this little act of kindness and encouragement in the future. The boy will feel you are interested in his progress and will strive to improve as his years increase. On the other hand, when your boy does badly, what do you then do? Do you fret, worry, scold and thrash the child into obedience, or do you let him go on "sowing to the wind and reaping the whirlwind?" Which course do you pursue? Do you go to the root of the matter by asking yourself where has he learned his mischief? And after looking at home to see whether the seeds of evil have not been sown there, do you visit the school, and in conjunction with the teacher do you sift the boy's character, by learning his ways and his associates? The teacher should never hesitate to tell the parent the faults of his child when solicited, for often the parent is kept in ignorance by the boy's own shrewdness; and there would not be as many unruly pupils if the parents could be led to visit the school-room and inquire concerning their children. Then, parents, don't fail to ask the teacher, and teacher don't be ashamed to tell the parent about his child, for his weal or woe depends greatly upon the training he receives at your hands.

Summary of War News.

There were skirmishing engagements in the vicinity of Paris on Friday and Saturday of last week. In each case the French were repulsed and lost largely. Several minor engagements have taken place during the week with varying results. The Prussian forces besieging Paris are getting their heavy siege guns in place, and expect to be ready to open fire and commence a general engagement on the 18th instant, the anniversary of the battle at Leipsic. Some enthusiastic Germans count on being in Paris by October 19th.

Telegrams from Berlin announce a great Prussian success before Metz last Sunday, and there is great excitement at the capital in consequence.—It is claimed the French were badly repulsed and driven within the walls of the city again with terrible loss of life. It is reported that the Prussians have burnt twenty small villages in that neighborhood and executed one hundred and fifty peasants for carrying on illicit warfare. Marshal Bazaine's soldiers are said to be greatly dissatisfied with the situation, and had counselled a surrender.

The London Times says Bismark's obvious policy is to render the French powerless for offence or defence hereafter.

Prince Frederick Charles, of Prussia, died of typhoid fever.

General Garibaldi is in France, but has not yet taken the field, his health preventing. He draws his sword in behalf of the French Republic.

Advices from the city of Paris represent the people as steadfast, quiet and orderly, and without any anxiety on the question of food. They claim to be fully prepared for any assault the Prussians may make.

The Death of General Lee.

LEXINGTON, VA., October 13.—This community was plunged into profound sorrow upon the death of General R. E Lee. The various church bells rang out their mournful dirges, and a general suspension of the duties of Washington College, the Virginia military institute, and the minor schools followed, and they will not resume again until after the final interment of the great chieftain. Every business house in the community was closed, and crape affixed to the doors. Even the colored barbers shut up their shops, and a general expression of deep grief was visible on every face.

General Lee had been almost entirely unconscious since Monday night last, and expired very peacefully and quietly at 9-30 on Wednesday morning. He was first taken sick on Sept. 28, while just about to sit down to tea, when he suddenly sank in his chair insensible. He soon reacted, and in the course of the next ten days steadily improved, until it was hoped he was out of danger, but on Monday evening last he became suddenly and rapidly worse, and continued to sink until Wednesday morning. During the early part of his sickness he slept much and spoke but little, but was rational when awake, and always recognized those who approached him. At times his mind seemed for a little while to wander, and on several occasions reverted to the army. He once ordered his tent to be struck, and at another time desired that "Hill should be sent for." He suffered but little pain during his whole sickness, and died without a struggle He will be buried on Saturday, October 15, at 12 o'clock.

The place selected for his interment is a vault beneath the college chapel, which stands in the midst of the college grounds. This was the first building he had erected after his removal to Lexington, having declared that it was proper that the first thing the college did should be to dedicate a house to the service of religion, and here he will appropriately rest, surrounded by the monuments of his later years, his remains sentinelled by the mountains of that Virginia upon which he has conferred such imperishable fame.

PERPETUAL MOTION.—A full patent has been received by a young man of Chicago for a perpetual motion machine. The Chicago papers say that the machine behaved itself handsomely, worked without cessation for months. The most essential portion of the machine consists of a hollow rocking lever, or beam, resembling the walking beam of a steamboat engine, except that it is bent at oblique angles in several places. Inside this are placed balls partially filled with mercury. The balls once set in motion roll down the interior of the hollow beam in a vain search for a permanent level, but no sooner do they reach the lower end than the mercury in the spokes of the main wheel overcome their weight, the beam is forced up, and the balls are again impelled in their onward rush, only to be caught by the valve that is forced open from without, and pushed into the upper arm of the beam or lever, ready to be hustled along their never-ending route. A delicately adjusted weight and brake are attached to the machine and serves to regulate its motion, but it is in the hollow spokes and beams, and the balls of quicksilver that the mysterious power is said to lie.

Many a man is rich without money. Thousands of men with nothing in their pockets are rich. A man born with a good heart and good limbs, and pretty good head-piece, is rich. Good bones are better than gold, tough muscles than silver, and nerves that flash fire and energy to every function, are better than houses and land. It is better than landed estate to have had the right kind of a father and mother. Good breeds and bad breeds exist among men as readily as among herds and horses. Education may do much to check the evil tendencies or to develop good ones, but it is a good thing to inherit the right proportion of faculties to start with.

COMMITEE.

THE STRAY LAW.—We are frequently interrogated in reference to the mode of treating stray horses, cattle, sheep, &c., The law on the subject is in substance this:

Whenever a stray beast is found trespassing on the premises of any one it is the duty of the party to give notice to the owner thereof under the penalty of $5, if he can be found, and within four days deliver to the town Clerk a full description of the kind, marks, color or any other natural marks of such stray or strays, together with the fees, which are, for a horse, 50 cents; cattle, 25 cents, and each sheep, 6 cents. If the owner does not appear, within ten days after such stray shall be taken up, and settle all damages and costs it shall be the duty of the party taking up the same to cause the said stray or strays to be advertised for three weeks at least in one newspaper. And if the owner shall not appear within sixty days after such advertisement, and settle all reasonable costs and damages, the person taking up the stray shall make application to a Justice of the Peace, in said township, who is required to issue his warrant to the Constable, whose duty it shall be to sell the same at public sale, first giving ten days' notice of such sale by at least three printed or written handbills. And after he shall have sold the same, he shall make returns of the proceeds, to the said Justice, who shall, after paying all reasonable damages and costs of keeping as aforesaid, pay over the surplus, if any there be, to the County Treasurer; but if the owner shall appear within one year of such sale and prove his property to such stray, the said Justice shall certify the same to said Treasurer, who shall pay the owner the whole amount of such overplus; but if the owner shall not apply within the time aforesaid he shall thereafter be debarred from recovering, and the money aforesaid may be applied to county purposes.

A WILD CAT TAKES A CHILD OUT OF ITS CRADLE.—On Thursday of last week, a wild cat entered the house of Mr. Elliott Walters, who resides at Wilson's mill, on Toby Creek, in Knox township, about seven miles north of this place, and took a child from the cradle, and was about to commence devouring it when it was driven away. The parents had gone out to gather in potatoes from a lot and left the baby wrapped up, sleeping in its cradle. A little girl was sent in after they had been absent a short time, to see about the child, and when she opened the door, was horrified to see a large wild cat with the infant behind the stove. The little girl was crying piteously, and in a short time would doubtless have been killed and devoured by the savage beast. On the alarm being given, the wild cat escaped through the window, and not since been seen in that neighborhood.—Clarion Democrat.

HORSE KILLED.—On Thursday night last, as Henry Bricker and another young man were driving into town in a buggy, near the station, they saw the Philadelphia Express approaching as they were on the track. DEATH OF DR. COCHRAN.—The telegraph made the announcement last week that Dr. Cochran of this place had died in St. Louis from taking an overdose of prussic acid. As soon as the announcement was made public, the impression gained credence that the Doctor had committed suicide. We have learned the particulars of the sad affair, and find that this is a wrong impression. The fact is that Dr. Cochran went to St. Louis and was attacked with violent neuralgia, and suffered such excruciating pains that he took a small dose of the acid to alleviate the pain, but the pain not leaving him he repeated the doses until the acid accumulated in his stomach, when it went through his system and resulted in his death. He had been sick several days, and we are assured he had no intention of committing suicide, as he spoke encouragingly of having found a location in a western State, where he had intended moving as soon as he returned to Huntingdon. He had resided in this place but a short time, but those who were best acquainted with him know that he was not a man that would intentionally end his life.

BEDFORD AND BRIDGEPORT RAILROAD.—On Wednesday of this week the grading of the Bedford and Bridgeport Railroad was let to Campbell & Son, of Philadelphia, for the sum of $94,000, twenty per cent of which is to be taken in the stock of the road. The work is to be commenced within twenty days. One half of the road is to be ready for the ties by the 15th of June, 1871, and the other half by the 11th of July, 1871. The contractors are experienced railroad men and will no doubt push the work along rapidly.

The road from Mt. Dallas to Bedford is advertised to be let on the 28th of this month. This looks like business and the people of old Bedford have now a good prospect of speedy railroad communication with the rest of mankind. For this we are indebted to the efficient Board of Directors who left nothing undone to make our railroad project a success.—Bedford Gazette.

We hail with delight the announcement that a railroad is soon to be built from Mt. Dallas through Bedford to Bridgeport. We will now consider Bedford up to the times, and Huntingdon will have to look out for her laurels

The man who can make his own fire, black his own boots, carry his own wood, hoe his own garden, subscribe for his own paper, pay his own debts, and live without wine or tobacco, need ask no favor of him who rides in a coach and four.

Luke Reilly will deliver Aerated Bread to-morrow morning. Buy some.

The latest and greatest "scourge"—the census. It gets its name from the ruthless manner in which it has cut down the figures men had set up. We think it has been here woefully, for while many thought we had 5000, the census makers have it only 3500. We would just like to know, as a matter of curiosity, what has become of the missing 1500? Has somebody hoodwinked the census men, and not told them of the thousand and one infants that skip unheeded by, or have we been most shamefully duped into fancying that every woman is equal to two men, and counted them as such. We cry for more light—less figures and more people.

AGENTS Wanted for SATAN IN SOCIETY

A NEW BOOK of the greatest interest and importance Written from a high moral and physiological standpoint by an eminent physician and medical professor, it shows how Satan is working out his subtle and dangerous designs through our most sacred domestic and social plantations. Pure-minded, but outspoken and aggressive, the author handles the delicate subjects treated of, without gloves, but in such a manner as not to minister to a prurient curiosity. The Physical Regeneration of the Race, is a subject justly exciting the interest and sympathy of all true philanthropists, and this book, it is believed, will contribute to that end just in proportion as it has readers. ROSADALIS

THIS Great American Health Restorer, purifies the blood and cures Scrofula, Syphilis, Skin Diseases, Rheumatism, Diseases of Women and all Chronic Affections of the Blood, Liver and Kidneys. Recommended by the Medical Faculty and thousand of our best citizens.

Read the testimony of Physicians and patients who have used Rosadalis send for our Rosadalis Guide to Health or Almanac for this year, which we publish for gratuitous distribution; it will give you much valuable information.

Dr. R. W. Carr, of Baltimore says:

I take pleasure in recommending your Rosadalis as a very powerful alterative. I have seen it used in two cases with happy results—one in case of secondary syphilis, in which the patient pronounced himself cured after having taken five bottles of your medicine. The other is a case of scrofula of long standing, which is rapidly improving under its use, and the indications are that the patient will soon recover. I have carefully examined the formula by which your Rosadalis is made, and find it an excellent compound of all alterative ingredients.

Dr. Sparks, of Nicholasville, Ky., says he has used Rosadalis in cases of scrofula and secondary Syphilis with satisfactory result—as a cleaner of the blood I know no better remedy.

Samuel G. McFadden, Murfreesboro' Tennessee, says:

I have used seven bottles of Rosadalis, and am entirely cured of Rheumatism; send me four bottles, as I wish it for my brother, who has scrofulous sore eyes.

Benjamin Bechtol, of Lima, Ohio, writes, I have suffered for twenty years with an inveterate eruption over my body; a short time since I purchased a bottle of Rosadalis and it effected a perfect cure.

Rosadalis is sold by John Read and S. S. Smith, Huntingdon, Pa., and Druggists generally.

Every malignant case treated will root and then is removed, if taken in time and scientific season. Bone and tissue cancers, with their roots, healed. Hundreds of cases treated, stealing our testimonials. No other treatment. None other should ever be used. For particulars, send for circular, call, or address as above. Sept. 20-3mms.

WHAT I KNOW OF FARMING.

BY HORACE GREELEY.

XXXIII.

INTELLECT IN AGRICULTURE.

If a man whose capital consists of the clothes on his back, $5 in his pocket, and an ax over his right shoulder, undertakes to hew for himself a farm out of the primitive forest, he must of course devote some years to rugged manual labor, or he will fail of success. It is indeed possible that he should find others, even on the rude outposts of civilization, who will hire him to teach school, or serve as county clerk, or survey lands, or do something else of like nature: thus enabling him to do his cropping trees, and rolling logs, and breaking up his stumpy acres, by proxy; but the fair presumption is that he will have to chop and dig, and burn off and fence, and break up, by the use of his own proper muscle; and he must be energetic and frugal, as well as fortunate, if he gets a comfortable house over his head, with forty arable acres about him, at the end of fifteen years' hard work. If he has brains, and has been well educated, he may possibly shorten this ordeal to ten years; but, should he begin by fancying hard work beneath him, or his abilities too great to be squandered in bush-wacking, he is very likely to come out at the little end of horn, and, straggling back to some popular settlement, more needy and seedy than when he set forth to wrest a farm from the wilderness, declaring the pioneer's life one of such dreary, hopeless privation that no one who can read or cypher ought ever to attempt it.

A poor man, who undertakes to live by his wits on a farm that he has bought on credit, is not likely to achieve a brilliant success; but the farmer whose hand and brain work in concert will never find nor fancy his intellect or his education too good for his calling. He may very often discover that he wasted months of his school days in what was not adapted to his needs, and of little use in fighting one actual battle of life; but he will at the same time, have ample reason to lament the meagerness and the deficiency of his knowledge.

I hold our average Common Schools defective, in that they fail to teach Geology and Chemistry, which in my view are the natural bases of a sound, practical knowledge of things—knowledge which the farmer, of all men, can least afford to miss. However it may be with others, he virtually needs to understand the character and constitution of the soil he must cultivate, the elements of which it is composed, and the laws which govern their relation to each other. Instruct him in the higher mathematics if you will, in logic, in meteorology, in ever so many languages; but not till he shall have been thoroughly grounded in the sciences which unlock for him the arcana of Nature; for these are intimately related to all he must do, and devise, and direct, throughout the whole course of his active career. Whatever he may learn or dispense with, a knowledge of these sciences is among the most urgent of his life-long needs.

Hence, I would suggest that a simple, lucid, lively, accurate digest of the leading principles and facts in Geology and Chemistry, and their application to the practical management of a farm, ought to constitute the reader of the highest class in every Common School, especially in rural districts. Leave out details and recipes, with directions when to plant or sow, &c.; for these must vary with climates, circumstances, and the progress of knowledge; but let the body and bones, so to speak, of a primary agricultural education be taught in every school, in such terms and with such clearness as to commend them to the understanding of every pupil. I never yet visited a school in which something was not taught which might be omitted or postponed in favor of this.

Out of school and after school, let the young farmer delight in the literature illustrative of his calling—I mean the very best of it. Let him have few agricultural books; but let these treat of principles and laws rather than of methods and applications. Let him learn from these how to ascertain by experiment what are the actual and pressing needs of his soil, and he will readily determine by reflection and inquiry how those needs may be most readily and cheaply satisfied.

All the books in the world never of themselves made one good farmer; but, on the other hand, no man in this age can be a thoroughly good farmer without the knowledge which is more easily and rapidly acquired from books than otherwise. Books are no substitute for open-eyed observation and practical experience; but they enable one familiar with their contents to observe with an accuracy, and experiment with an intelligence that is unattainable without them. The very farmer who tells you that he never opened a book which treats of Agriculture, and never wants to see one, will ask his neighbor how to grow or cure tobacco, or hops, or sorgho, or any crop with which he is yet unacquainted, when the chances are a hundred to one that this particular neighbor cannot advise him so well as the volume which embodies the experience of a thousand cultivators of this very plant instead of barely one. A good book treating practically of Agriculture, or of some department therein, is simply a compendium of the experience of past ago combined with such knowledge as the present generation have been enabled to add thereto. It may be faulty or defective on some points; it is not to be blindly confided in, nor slavishly followed—it is to be mastered, discussed, criticised, and followed so far as its teachings coincide with the dictates of science, experience, and common sense. Its true office is suggestion; the good farmer will learn upon and trust it as an oracle only where his own proper knowledge proves entirely deficient.

By-and-by, it will be generally realized that few men live or have lived who cannot find scope and profitable employment for all their intellect on a two-hundred acre farm. And then the farmer will select the brightest of his sons to follow him in the management and cultivation of the paternal acres, leaving those of inferior capacity to seek fortune in pursuits for which a limited and special capacity will serve, if not suffice. And then we shall have an Agriculture worthy of our country and the age.

ADDRESS
TO THE
NERVOUS AND DEBILITATED.

WHOSE SUFFERINGS HAVE BEEN PROTRACTED FROM HIDDEN CAUSES, AND WHOSE CASES REQUIRE

PROMPT TREATMENT.

TO RENDER EXISTENCE DESIRABLE

If you are suffering, or have suffered, from involuntary discharges, what effect does it produce upon your general health? Do you feel weak, debilitated, easily tired? Does a little extra exertion produce palpatation of the heart? Does your liver, or urine organs, or your kidneys, get out of order? Is your urine sometimes thick, milky or flocky, or is it ropy on settling? Or does a thick skum rise to the top? Or is a sediment at the bottom after it has stood awhile? Do you have spells of short breathing or dyspepsia? Are your bowels constipated? Do you have spells of fainting, or rushes of blood to the head? Is your memory impaired? Is your mind constantly dwelling on this subject? Do you feel dull, listless, moping, tired of company, of life? Do you wish to be left alone, to get away from everybody? Does any little thing make you start or jump? Is your sleep broken or restless? Is the luster of your eye as bright? Do you enjoy yourself in society as well? Do you pursue your business with the same energy? Do you feel as much confidence in yourself? Are your spirits dull and flagging, given to fits of melancholy? If so, do not lay it to your liver or dyspepsia. Have you rest less nights? Your back weak, your knees weak, and have but little appetite, and you attribute this to dyspepsia or liver complaint?

Now, reader, self-abuse, venereal diseases badly cured, and sexual excesses, are all capable of producing a weakness of the generative organs. The organs of generation, when in perfect health, make the man. Did you ever think that those bold, defiant, energetic, persevering, successful business men are always those whose organs are in perfect health? You never hear such men complain of being melancholy, of nervousness, of palpitation of the heart. They are never afraid they cannot succeed in business; they don't become sad and discouraged, they are always polite and pleasant in company of ladies, and look you and them right in the face—none of your downcast looks or any other meanness about them. I do not mean those who keep the organs inflamed by running to excess. These will not only ruin their constitution, but those they do business with or for.

How many men, from badly cured disease, from the effects of self-abuse and excesses, have brought about that state of weakness in these organs that has reduced the general system so much as to induce almost every other disease—idiocy, lunacy, paralysis, spinal affections, suicide, and almost every form of disease humanity is heir to—and the real cause of the trouble scarcely ever suspected, and have doctored for all but the right one.

COUGHS, SORE THROAT, ETC

No medicine or treatment can excel the powerful curative power of

DR. SIMMS'

WHITE PULMONIC BALSAM.

It cures with a rapidity unequalled by any other remedy offered for throat and lung diseases. It is recommended by over 2,000 persons in Wilmington, and hundreds in Philadelphia, Baltimore and other cities and communities throughout the country. Mr. Pennington, of Wilmington, Illinois, writes that there is not (with a few exceptions) a family in that city who will be without it if possible to procure it. Such is its popularity wherever it is known—and this popularity arises from the fact that it universally cures all who use it. There is no case of

COUGHS, COLDS, SORE THROAT,

ASTHMA, BRONCHITIS, CROUP,

BLOOD SPITTING, HOARSENESS, and even Pulmonary Consumption, where the system is not broken down with the wear of the disease, or pretended medicine, or improperly advice, that this Balsam will not cure if carefully used according to directions. We guarantee it all we represent it to, and invite a trial from the afflicted everywhere. Price 50 cts. and $1 per bottle, and $5 for large size bottles. Prepared only by
